

Woodstock Allstar Band presents “A Tribute to Horst Fischer”

Horst Fischer. You may not know the sound of his name. But you know the sound of his music. He was a legend, touring around the world with his „Golden Trumpet“. To preserve his legacy, Woodstock Music decided to invite world famous trumpet players to revive some of his most famous pieces of music. Combined with the rich sound of a Big Band this record will be one to remember.

Introducing “Woodstock Allstar Band”

Since 2017, the Woodstock Allstar Band has stood for powerful wind instruments from the ranks of international orchestras and bands. After the collaboration with James Morrison in 2017, the sensational appearance with "The Baseballs" in 2018, a wild bluegrass show with "Steve'n'Seagulls" and a "Tribute to James Last" in 2019, the first record is on its way. The Woodstock Allstar Band dedicates a "Tribute to Horst Fischer" to the forgotten German trumpet legend Horst Fischer.

Horst Fischer: a legend of the past

He was like no one. A legend among trumpeters. Horst Fischer made it to the top of the charts and sold more than 1 million records. Born 1930 near Chemnitz, he was more than an ordinary trumpet player. Forever known for his extraordinary cadences, his incredible art of playing and his penchant for high notes. Above all, he made a name for himself with his final cadences in "Ciribiribin" up to f3 or in Erwin Lehn's "Western Blues". His golden age was the 50s and 60s. He was celebrated worldwide and engaged by well-known orchestras.

A life full of musical highs, which, however, came to a sad end. The musician was forgotten by the music world and died in 1986 impoverished and drawn by alcohol. Now it's time to pay tribute to Horst "Hackl" Fischer and his Magic Trumpet. And who could do that better than the musicians of the Woodstock Allstar Band?
